

EDITORIAL

There is dearth of Journals in India to cover research on Indian Wisdom. This acts as a stumbling block for carrying out research in academics. There are few research journals, published outside India on Hinduism. These journals promote distorted version of Hinduism. Research papers representing the true Hinduism, rarely get opportunity to get published. There are many authors who have faced these problems. There is at least one paper in this issue which has faced this. This is the reason for starting the e-journal “Swastik - Journal of Indian Wisdom”.

First issues of “Swastik - Journal of Indian Wisdom”, has representation from across India. I am grateful to authors for submitting the articles on a very short notice.

This is just the beginning. You will see the journal evolve. I have some ideas to take it forward. Readers will have lot more ideas. Please keep sharing them and yes, do spread the word and do send the research papers.
